John T. Broderick Jr. is a former Chief Justice of the New Hampshire Supreme Court. He served as Associate Justice of the court from 1995 to 2004 and as its Chief Justice from 2004 to 2010. Broderick holds a J.D. from the University of Virginia School of Law and a B.A. from the College of the Holy Cross. Since 2015, Broderick has been on a journey to end the stigma surrounding mental health in New Hampshire and now in surrounding New England states.

Judge Broderick wants to encourage people to talk about mental illness, so he tells the story of his oldest son.
